Lee's Summit R-VII Receives District of Excellence Distinction in School Nutrition

Congratulations to Lee's Summit R-VII School District and Jane Hentzler, Director of Nutrition Services, on achieving the School Nutrition Association's (SNA) District of Excellence Distinction in School Nutrition.

The District of Excellence program recognizes exemplary school nutrition programs that demonstrate best practices and are models for their peers. A district receiving the District of Excellence distinction has completed a thorough self-assessment in the following areas: nutrition and nutrition education, communications and marketing, administration, and operations. The school nutrition director then submits a comprehensive application documenting knowledge and application of national best practices in the areas listed above. District of Excellence recipients are also eligible for the prestigious $25,000 District of the Year Award.

A great thank you to SNA for all they do to make these awards available to Local Education Agencies (LEAs).

Summer School Child Nutrition Programs

LEAs that operate summer school programs may extend the services of their school lunch/breakfast/snack programs to attending students.

If sites restrict meals services to summer school students only, these sites must operate under the National School Lunch Program/School Breakfast Program (NSLP/SBP) regulations.

The Seamless Summer Option is run under NSLP/SBP guidelines and is administered by DESE. These summer sites must be located in needy areas where 50 percent or more of the children qualify for free and reduced price meals. The sites may also be located in non-needy areas provided that at least 50 percent of the children enrolled at these sites qualify for free and reduced price schools.

The Missouri Department of Health and Senior Services (MDHSS) administers the Summer Food Service Program (SFSP). Site eligibility for SFSP is determined the same way as for the Seamless Summer Option, except that determinations are made by MDHSS.

Meals may also be served in non-needy areas provided that at least 50 percent of the children enrolled in the site's food program qualify for free or reduced price meals.

New Grants to Help Schools Boost Breakfast Program Participation

Increasing the number of children eating breakfast at school is the goal of a new grant program from Action for Healthy Kids.

With generous support from Kellogg's Corporate Citizenship Fund, the program is offering grants to schools that currently participate in the School Breakfast Program (SBP) with greater than 50 percent eligibility for free and reduced price meals. The goal is to increase average daily student participation by 25 percent.

Schools buildings in every state meeting minimum grant requirements are eligible. However, priority will be given to schools in states with the lowest average daily student participation in school breakfast as a percentage of school lunch participation, as reported in the Food Research and Action Center (FRAC) 2007-2008 School Breakfast Scorecard.

School breakfast plays a critical role in addressing the epidemic of overweight and undernourished children. Research shows both educational and nutritional benefits to children who have school breakfast.

"We believe that schools are an incredible equalizer in ensuring that all kids have daily access to healthy foods," said Rob Bisceglie, executive director of Action for Healthy Kids. "These grants will help schools expand participation through creative programs and marketing practices so students are fit, healthy and ready to learn."

The grants are intended to fund implementation of alternative breakfast programs, innovative marketing and promotions, and/or enhancement of the school breakfast experience through educational enrichment activities. Awards will range between $500 and $2,000.

According to FRAC, 8.5 million children from low-income families participated in the SBP last school year. That is an increase of 4 percent over the previous year, but the program still misses more than half of America's eligible children.

Orientation to School Nutrition Management Seminar

June 15–19, 2009 • The University of Mississippi – Oxford Campus

What is orientation to school nutrition management?

The orientation seminar is a blended-learning approach that combines traditional, instructor-led presentations with Web-based learning activities and interactive videoconferences. This five-day seminar is designed for new and prospective school nutrition program directors. Participants will receive information essential to the operation of a cost-effective, customer-focused program that promotes healthy eating behaviors. Classes will meet 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday at the National Food Service Management Institute (NFSMI).

What will I learn? The seminar provides a history and overview of child-nutrition programs, defines the role and responsibilities of a director, and reviews the relationship between local policies and state/federal regulations. Topics include financial management and record keeping, menu planning and food production, facility layout and design, safety and sanitation, purchasing, personnel management, nutrition education, and marketing. Expert child-nutrition program professionals, NFSMI staff and university faculty will present on the different topics.

Who should attend? Individuals interested in becoming school nutrition program directors, current directors who have less than five years of experience and professionals interested in gaining a broad overview of child-nutrition program management will all benefit from this seminar. Enrollment is limited. Due to the limited space, participants should plan on attending the entire seminar.

What is the cost? The $150 registration fee provides for seminar materials, NFSMI resources, laboratory supplies, refreshment breaks and some lunches. Participants are responsible for transportation, lodging and all other meals. For undergraduate college credit (FCS 469), the cost of admission to the university and tuition must be handled directly with the University of Mississippi. Visit <http://www.olemiss.edu/admissions/> for an admissions form and other details. Deadline for admission is May 15, 2009. Prospective students are responsible for all arrangements required to enroll in the university and register for credit.

How do I get more information and register?

Download the registration form at <http://www.nfsmi.org> and mail it with the registration fee by May 22, 2009. Confirmation will be sent via e-mail. For additional information, contact Melba Hollingsworth, education and training specialist, by phone at (800) 321-3054 or by e-mail at mholling@olemiss.edu.

Ways to Assist Families During Economic Downturn

During difficult economic times, LEAs may assist families experiencing financial hardships in several ways:

- LEAs can remind families that changes in household income may be reported at any time during the school year.
- Families may apply for free or reduced price benefits at any time during the school year.
- Because families might be moving to new school districts, LEAs should be reminded that they can share/accept a child's existing eligibility determination. See Part 3, O. (Transferring eligibility between LEAs) of the Eligibility Guidance for School Meals Manual for additional information. Go to <http://dese.mo.gov/divadm/food/Handbooks.htm>.
